

HIV/AIDS

What is BRTA?

Business Responds to AIDS (BRTA) is a free public-private partnership initiative of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) that supports small, medium and large-size businesses with tailored resources and tools of effective workplace programs and human resource (HR) policies to reduce stigma and prevent discrimination against employees living with HIV. In partnership with the private sector, BRTA seeks to increase HIV awareness among the nation's workforce, strengthen workplace-based testing, prevention and treatment services, and elevate corporate social responsibility focusing on domestic HIV efforts.

BRTA in Business

Understand how your business can make an impact and strengthen itself through development of a partnership with the BRTA program.

Implementing BRTA

Understanding the importance of providing HIV training and education to employees and how to integrate this into wellness programs.

Partner with BRTA

Learn how a BRTA partner displays commitment to the principles of the BRTA program and the many benefits of partnership.

Cut for Life

Cut for Life is CDC's effort to promote HIV awareness and prevention among hair care and beauty professionals.

Understanding Policy

Get HIV/AIDS Education

Health Care Worker Risk

Download Resources

Understand the benefits and essential elements of an HIV workplace policy.

Learn the basics about HIV, including information on the virus, its origins, symptoms, and testing.

Learn more about the risk of occupational HIV transmission for health care workers and how it can be prevented.

Find educational resources about education, HIV transmission and prevention, and training and policy.